

Collaborative Learning Project

Top 10 Titles

NATE and TES have identified the books that teachers love to teach

on Saturday, 28th November 2015

10.00am - 1.00pm at

Collaborative Learning, 17, Barford Street, Islington, London N1 0QB

email: stuart.scott@collaborativelearning.org to book a place.

Collaborative Learning is now running one of these workshops roughly every month in future. They are a revival of the workshops we used to run over twenty years ago, and which were declared "better than shopping!"

We have always believed that when teachers plan together they are more creative and more productive.

The workshop is free but places are limited and you must register beforehand.

The small print

We are currently planning activities for Key Stages 2 and 3. Wifi and photocopying is available. Coffee/tea will be available from 9.30am and we can offer lunch at 1.00pm for those of you who do not want to dash down to the West End, but let us know (with any dietary information) when you register if you would like lunch.

If you like the idea of being creative collaboratively, you might also be interested in the Teachers as Writers groups that meet all over the UK. We attend regularly. There are six groups currently meeting in London! Go to the National Writing Project <www.nwp.org.uk>
to find a group near you.

CLP is a non-profit making teacher network. Our main aim is to develop and disseminate tried and tested examples of effective group talk for learning strategies across all phases and subjects.

More information and a growing number of free activities can be downloaded from our website:

www.collaborativelearning.org

How to find us

