

Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-time

Selection of Christopher's behaviours:

Can you think of a similar behaviour that you may have.

Christopher's memory is like a film. He can rewind it and remember every conversation and exactly what people were wearing. He can also remember all the smells he has smelt.

If his food is touching on the plate Christopher cannot eat it.

Christopher believes that his mother is dead because his father told him this, and he believes that his father never tells lies.

Christopher likes to pretend he is the only person in the world because it makes him feel happy.

Christopher wants to hit anyone who touches him.

Christopher cannot tell lies nor can he tell jokes nor understand them

Christopher liked being in a police cell because it was almost a perfect cube.

Christopher counts and measures everything and always knows the time when things happen.

All the pictures in Christopher's head are of things that really happened.

Christopher does not like things that are brown or yellow.

Christopher's favourite imaginings are being in a submersible at the bottom of the sea, or living in a world where everyone else has died of a virus.

Christopher likes maths problems, and can remember all the prime numbers up to 7507.
