

Quicklook at STAYING ALIVE

Why do some settlements grow? Why do some decline and disappear? This activity around what a settlement needs was first produced by Kingsland School Geography department in 1984. The ILEA had supported the project in 1981 by commissioning non-sexist drawings from Carol Ross. We have included those which don't seem too dated, but it is significant that women/men are still not working in these occupations more than twenty years later. The picture activity is very well suited to classrooms with a number of beginners to English. We originally had fifty cards but we need new pictures for some examples, or some new examples for which you have pictures! Can you provide some!

INSTRUCTIONS

People settle in one place because it satisfies their basic needs. Some settlements die out, some grow into towns and even cities. Why is this?

The picture cards show many of the things people need in a settlement. There is a written list below. The 'Staying Alive Table' shows the ten main categories. Work out in groups where each picture card may fit by the arrows on the table.

Some cards fit into more than one category!
